STATEMENT OF FACTS

Defendant HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS INTERNATIONAL, INC. ("HGI") manages three exhibition basketball teams that tour worldwide under the name "Harlem Globetrotters." Plaintiff TAMMY BRAWNER was employed by defendant as a basketball player on one of those three teams from around November of 2012 to April of 2015. Plaintiff was the only female player on her team. During plaintiff's final year of employment, she was subjected to sexual harassment, discrimination based on pregnancy/perceived disability, retaliation and wrongful termination.

From 2012 to 2014, plaintiff was performing very well and was considered an asset to HGI. The trouble started in or around 2014, when defendant Jimmy Blacklock, ("Coach Blacklock") was assigned as coach of plaintiff's basketball team. Coach Blacklock repeatedly made inappropriate, offensive and harassing comments. Some comments were made to plaintiff, some were made in her presence, and some where made about her which she learned of later. The comments were of a sexual nature and related to gender, and included the following:

- At least once, he called plaintiff his girlfriend, which she found offensive and patronizing.
- On multiple occasions he made comments that implied that plaintiff -- who was happily married -- was having sexual relations with a male teammate, who was also married.
- When plaintiff confronted Coach Blacklock and asked him to stop, he responded by stating, in essence, that he did not know her well enough to know that she was not a slut, adulterer and home wrecker.
- Coach Blacklock told plaintiff's teammates to stay away from her because she was a seductress who would ruin their marriages.
- Coach Blacklock started a rumor that plaintiff had slept with her prior coach.

These offensive comments and lies were highly offensive and upsetting to plaintiff and, as a result, she complained to the general manager of HGI. The general manager did nothing to address Coach Blacklock's misconduct and, instead, he fired plaintiff shortly after she made the complaint. The termination was substantially in retaliation for plaintiff complaining about Coach Blacklock's harassing and discriminatory comments.

In addition, a few months before plaintiff's termination, plaintiff began having bouts of nausea and sickness. Plaintiff's symptoms were bad enough that she had to go to urgent care. During plaintiff's bouts of sickness, Coach Blacklock ordered plaintiff to report to practices and games, and to suit up for them, even then she was too sick to play. This served no legitimate business purpose, but was a way for Coach Blacklock to make plaintiff suffer in retaliation for her complaining about his offensive sexual harassment. Thus, plaintiff had to spend many days agonizing in uniform in a noisy gymnasium while sick and nauseated.

In mid-April, plaintiff finally took medical leave from the team due to her sickness and returned home to recover, missing the last two and a half weeks of the season. After taking her leave, plaintiff found out around that she was pregnant, which was the reason for the sickness she had been experiencing. Plaintiff was fired a few week after taking her medical leave. Plaintiff's sickness, her pregnancy/ perceived disability, and her taking of protected medical leave were motivating factors in her termination in addition to her complaints about sexual harassment.

Due to defendants' sexual harassment, discrimination and retaliation, plaintiff has suffered wrongful termination, loss of income, loss of earnings capacity, great embarrassment, severe physical distress, emotional distress and mental anguish, as well as other damages. Defendants' misconduct was outrageous and caused plaintiff severe emotional distress and other damages.

Additional Complaint Details:

⊙ p From around August of 2014 to April of 2015, I was subjected to unwanted and offensive verbal harassment of a sexual nature. My supervisor spread rumors that I was having a sexual affair with different male co-workers, and when I confronted him, he said that he did not know me well enough to know that I was not a slut. He also told co-workers to stay away from me because I would seduce them and destroy their marriages. I complained to the general manager about this and was terminated a few weeks later. Also, in early 2015, I began getting sick and nauseous and was unable to do my work. My supervisor insisted that I show up at work even though i could not actually do any work, and even though he knew that I was ill. Eventually, this became too much for me and I took a formal medical leave, in April of 2015. A few weeks later, I found out that I was pregnant. I received notice that I was being terminated in May of 2015. I believe my termination was motivated by (1) retaliation for my complaining about the sexual harassment, (2) my taking protected medical/pregnancy leave, and (3) my having a disability/perceived disability (due to having taken medical leave).
